About Mark Fesen, M.D. FACP

Practicing oncologist and patient empowerment leader Dr. Mark Fesen knows first hand the medical, financial and personal challenges patients and their families face in their fight against cancer within an all-to-often impersonal and frighteningly complicated health care system. In his clinical practice, Dr. Fesen works to empower his cancer patients while providing the best clinical care. Meanwhile, Dr. Fesen supplements these clinical efforts by working to improve care and promote empowerment for all cancer patients through his outreach to patients and families, other health care providers, community leaders, and policy makers. In “Surviving the Cancer System: An Empowering Guide To Taking Control of Your Healthcare,” Dr. Fesen shares key information cancer patients and their families need to better understand and control of their own care. A true health care servant leader, Dr. Fesen’s leadership in empowering cancer patients and their families is an inspirational reminder of the significant difference one person committed to the service of others makes in saving and improving the lives of others.
